SUMMARY

This bill would preclude certain documents relating to an agency's security from being disclosed to the public.

SUMMARY OF AMENDMENTS

With the July 27, 2003, amendments, current law regarding closed session meetings would not be amended by this bill. In addition, with these amendments:

- Customer lists provided to state or local police agencies by an alarm or security company would not be required to be disclosed to the public.
- Documents that assess vulnerability to terrorist attacks or other criminal acts and related emergency response plans would not be required to be disclosed to the public or open to public inspection, depending upon the public interest to be served.

The bill would still not significantly affect FTB's programs or operations nor impact the department's costs or the state's income tax revenue.
